Churchill Demands Soviet Showdown

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Winston Churchill declared today western Europe must unite quickly and demand a showdown with Moscow before the Russians develop atomic weapons, possibly in a year or so.

Even an early showdown "would not guarantee that war would not come," Churchill said, but:

"I believe it would give the best chance of preventing it and, if it came, we would have the best chance of coming out of it alive."

Churchill told the Commons: "You may be sure the present situation cannot last. There are very grave dangers in letting everything run on and pile up until something happens and the matter passes all of a sudden out of your control."

The Conservative Party leader endorsed the Labor government's proposal for unification of Western Europe as a barrier to the spread of Communism. But he appealed to his political opponents to rise above party in fostering the plan.

"In trying to make a united Socialist Europe, you are on the same level as trying to make a united Communist Europe."

RECALLS EARLIER WARNING

Chances for reaching an agreement with Russia are better now than "if we waited until the Soviet government had got their atomic weapons developed," he said, and recalled that when the present Parliament convened he predicted Russia would have the atom bomb in "three or four years." Now "two years have already elapsed," he said.

Churchill appeared fully recovered from his recent illness. He spoke 45 minutes in a firm, clear voice and his sallies kept the House alert.

In urging a common approach to Russia, Churchill said the western democracies should seek unity among themselves "at the earliest possible moment," then take the initiative in seeking a settlement on realistic terms.

Churchill read portions of a speech he made 15 months ago in which he said everybody was worried whether there would be another war and in which he "expressed no opinion."

PLEDGES SUPPORT

Since then "the situation has deteriorated—and especially in the last six months," he said.

In a move for national unity behind Foreign Sec. Bevin's plan for western European consolidation, Churchill announced:

"We give all our support to this policy."

"We welcome everything which was said by the foreign secretary about the more intimate relations we should keep with France, the Benelux countries (Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg) and, I presume, with Switzerland, if she should wish it, and also with Italy."

Churchill drew a laugh from the House, and from Princess Elizabeth, who was attending, when he declared:

"We would be well advised to leave the past to history, especially as I propose to write that history myself."

Prime Minister Attlee followed Churchill and wound up the two-day debate on foreign affairs. Attlee counseled a careful approach to the idea of a western Europe union, saying it should "be done under the larger unity of the United Nations." Foreign Secretary Bevin had said yesterday the "time is ripe" for consolidation.

More moderate in tone than either Churchill or Bevin had been, Attlee said he did not believe war imminent but added "there is no good shutting our eyes to the possibility." He said "the suggestion of a united Europe did not exclude the rest of the world" and that Britain seeks the friendliest relations with the Russians.

POPE SEES CARD. HLOND

'Couldn't Accept' Says Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said flatly today: "I am not available for and could not accept nomination for high political office." The Army Chief of Staff's statement referred to entry of his name in the New Hampshire presidential primary March 9.

Gen. Eisenhower wrote Leonard V. Finder, publisher of the Manchester Union-Leader, that for two reasons he had heretofore "refrained from making the bald statement that I would not accept nomination."

The first, Eisenhower said, was that such an expression would "smack of effrontery."

A second and deeper reason, the general added, was a "persistent doubt that I could phrase a flat refusal without appearing to violate that concept of duty to country which calls upon every good citizen to place no limitations upon his readiness to serve in any designated capacity."

TEXT OF LETTER

Here is what General Eisenhower wrote:

"Dear Mr. Finder: "Your letter and editorial have been on my desk for more than a week while I pondered the reply merited by your obvious concern for the nation's welfare, and from a personal standpoint by the honor you had done me. Months ago I thought that unqualified denial of political ambition would eliminate me from consideration in the coming campaign for the presidency, because that office has, since the days of Washington, historically and properly fallen only to aspirants."

"That some few would misinterpret or look for hidden meanings in my past expressions was expected and discounted, but my failure to convince thoughtfully and earnest men, such as yourself, proves that I must make some amplification. This will necessarily partake of the laborious, due to the complexity of the factors that have influenced me to say no more than I have, but which dictate my decision that I am not available for and could not accept nomination to high political office."

REASONS FOR RETICENCE

"I have heretofore refrained from making the bald statement that I would not accept nomination, although this has been my intention since the subject was first mentioned to me."

"This omission seems to have been a mistake, since it has inadvertently misled sincere and disinterested Americans. But my reticence stemmed from cogent reasons. The first was that such an expression would smack of effrontery. I had and I have no desire to appear either as assuming that significant numbers of our peoples would actively interest themselves in me as a possible candidate, or to appear as lacking in respect and regard for the highest honor American citizens can confer upon one of their own body."

"A second and even deeper reason was a persistent doubt that I could phrase a flat refusal without appearing to violate that concept of duty to country which calls upon every good citizen to place no limitations upon his readiness to serve in any designated capacity. On this point it is my conviction, that, unless an individual feels some inner compulsion and special qualifications to enter the political arena, which I do not, a refusal to do so involves no violation of the highest standards of devotion to duty."

ROLE OF SOLDIER

"It was only the possible misinterpretation of my attitude that caused me concern and so long as I could believe that more denial of political ambition would prevent serious misunderstanding and misdirected effort, I was reluctant to say more. It would seem almost superfluous for me to add that as long as I live I shall hold myself in instant readiness to respond to any call by the government to military duty."

"In full awareness, then, and not in violation of my own sense of duty, I have developed the following conclusions, which are responsible for my negative decision."

"It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained, and our people will have greater confidence that it is so sustained, when lifelong professional soldiers, in the absence of obvious and overriding reasons, abstain from seeking high political office. This truth has a possible inverse application. I would regard it as unalloyed tragedy for our country if ever should come the day when military commanders might be selected with an eye to their future potentialities in the political field rather than exclusively upon judgment as to their military abilities."

"Politics is a profession; a serious, complicated one, in its true sense, a noble one."

"In the American scene I see

Hints Politics in Cambridge Raids

The Rev. Frank Gerrish Potter, rect of Grace Methodist Church, Cambridge, and long a campaigner against vice and crime in the city, declared today that the crackdown on gambling in Cambridge seemed due to the "possible effect it might have on the election of a mayor."

Members of the City Council are meeting tonight to resume their almost three-week long battle of ballots to elect a mayor from their ranks.

"It seems peculiar that this story should be broken at this time," he said. "It would seem that it was for a specific purpose."

"There has been common talk around the city for the past two days that one candidate for mayor has succeeded in getting the necessary fifth vote to assure his election. It might well be that this story has been broken in an attempt to frighten off that support."

The minister declared that he had been aware for some time of the pre-Christmas meeting in which Dist. Atty. George E. Thompson conferred with Cambridge civic and police officials and ordered the crackdown on gambling. In fact, he said, he had been conducting a private investigation of his own for the past month.

"As a result of this investigation," he said, "I have no hesitation in saying Cambridge certainly needs a good cleaning. Only the other day I saw one of these ringleaders in gambling operating openly in the Central park area. I reported it to Capt. Patrick McCarthy and he promised to investigate."

City Manager John B. Atkinson said he planned to sit down with Police Chief John R. King, late today, and discuss future moves in the crackdown on gambling in the city.

Kay Francis in Coma From Sleeping Pills

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23 (AP)—Actress Kay Francis was stricken early today and while she lay unconscious in a hospital her stage manager was booked "for investigation of assault to kill." Howard Graham, 37, was taken to jail, protesting "I'm not doing anything" and declaring the 43-year-old star of the stage play, "State of the Union," had taken an overdose of sleeping pills.

Chauncy St. Fire Drives 100 to Street

A flash fire, starting in the cutting room of an 8th floor blouse and sportswear shop in the Wendell Phillips Building, Chauncy and Essex sts., today drove more than 100 persons to the street and caused damage estimated at $10,000.

Two alarms were sounded as smoke and flame roared from the windows and hampered firemen. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Elaine Lacritz, a bookkeeper employed in the shop, which was owned by Edward Friedman.

"I was alone in the office when I heard a roar in the cutting room," she said. "I looked in and saw a flash of fire."

She and Friedman tried to fight the fire with extinguishers, but made no headway.

Fifteen persons were driven from the eighth floor, occupied by furriers and clothing manufacturers' shops, and others were driven from other upper floors by the smoke.

Firemen managed to confine the flames to the Friedman shop, but adjoining offices and shops were damaged by smoke and water.

The first floor is occupied by a branch of the National Shawmut Bank. As soon as the fire was discovered, directors ordered all money in the branch placed in the vault and sealed.

Zero Due in Hub, Suburbs 10 Below

Zero weather will strike Boston tonight, with the mercury plunging to 10 below in outlying towns and "extreme cold" prevailing tomorrow, the federal forecaster predicted at noon. Snow flurries of negligible proportions were expected to herald the cold wave.

Boston will experience a night which will see the temperature drop from the 20's to within a few points of the all-time recorded low of -6 for this date in 1882. The mercury may not climb to more than 16 tomorrow, the bureau said.

From the West, whence the frigid air masses are moving, temperatures as low as 37 below were reported, with the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan and Omaha the principal sufferers.

Lowest reading to date at Logan Airport has been 3 above, within the past 10 days.

Winds will remain light for the next 36 hours, the forecaster as-

Police this afternoon released Graham after questioning. They said they had confirmed his story the actress took an overdose of sleeping pills.

"The detectives talked to her," said assistant detective chief Jay S. Teale, "and she said she had been nervous and couldn't sleep. She had been taking these pills so she took more than she thought she was taking."

William Blair, company manager of the show playing here, said Miss Francis had been suffering with a cold for a week and was worried about her health.

Miss Francis, taken to White Cross Hospital about 8 a. m., regained consciousness at noon.

CONDITION SERIOUS

Her physician, Dr. Maurice B. Rusoff said:

"She is now groggy but conscious and able to talk. She is suffering from an upper respiratory infection. Her condition is serious but not critical. I believe she will live. She had not been assaulted."

Police p.d.locked Miss Francis' hotel room, to which Graham said he was summoned by the actress at 6 a. m. Graham said the actress told him she had taken an overdose of medicine. She had been burned on the legs in falling against a radiator, apparently while in a stupor, the stage manager reported.

Two detectives first reported the room bore evidence of a "wild party," but later declared the room was in order.

LEFT HER AT 2:30 A. M.

Graham told reporters in mid-afternoon he and Miss Francis had some food after last night's performance and he left her about 2:30 a. m. and went to his room in the same hotel. He added:

"About 7:30, I received a call from Miss Francis, who said she was ill."

"I went to her room and knocked and she answered. She was clad in a blue robe."

"While I was talking to her she fainted."

Graham said he then telephoned a physician and Dr. Rusoff responded.

The Boston and Maine, which suspended train service Wednesday on the Medford and Saugus branches because highway plows had dumped so much snow at crossings, announced it will resume the Medford service Monday morning and Saugus service Monday afternoon.

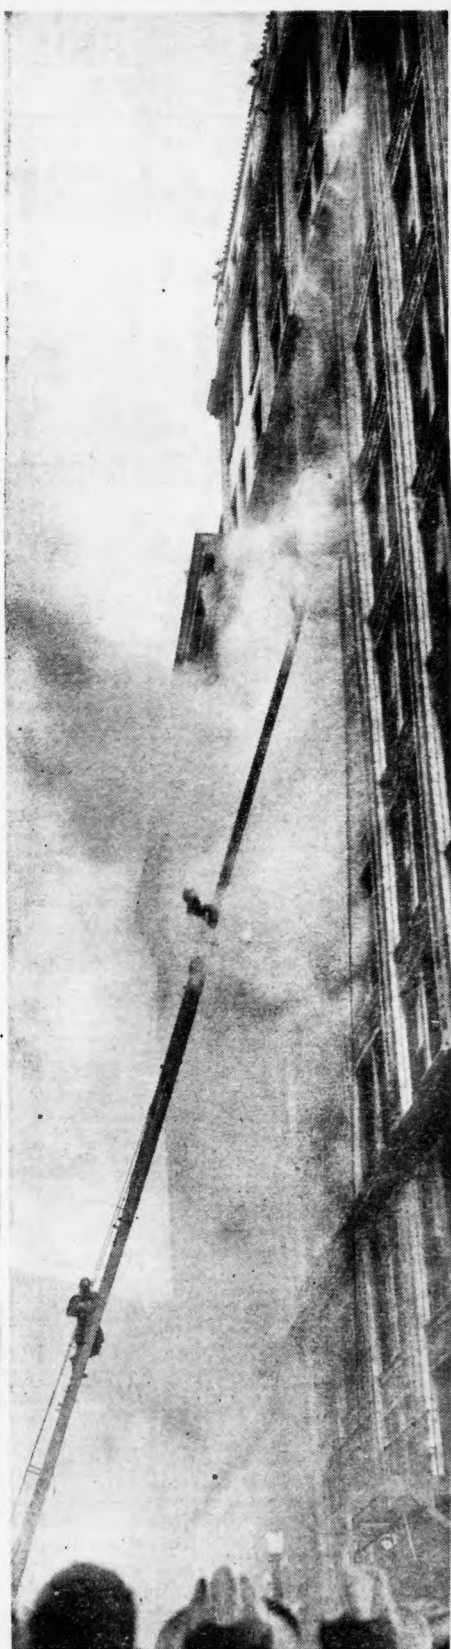

From M. I. T. came an explanation today of the leaks which have stained walls and ceilings of thousands of homes in the past week.

Prof. Walter C. Voss said these leaks were a normal consequence of successive storms piling up snow in a period of continuous freezing weather.

He said snow and ice built up into dams on the edge of the sloping roof, and these hold back the water that melts on the warm upper portion of the roof. The water, backing up, seeps under shingles, slate or tile and leaks into the house.

He suggested as a temporary remedy chopping through this icy dam with an axe, or melting it with hot water. Either way a channel would be made to carry off the water flowing down the slope.

Truck Strikers Again Huddle With Owners

Atty Ralph H. Cahouet, counsel for Boston truck owners, was accused of insincerity and delaying tactics today by Nicholas P. Morrissey, international representative of the Teamsters' Union, as employer and union representatives huddled once more today at the State House in an effort to settle the Boston truck strike.

Morrissey's bias was aimed at Cahouet's action in taking to the radio last night to discuss the strike and its cost to both owners and truck drivers.

It came as striking drivers threw a picket line around the terminal of a Massachusetts trucking firm in Providence and prevented it from operating.

In a statement to newsmen, "The action of Mr. Cahouet in attacking the teamsters' union in the midst of negotiations to settle the strike indicates a complete lack of sincerity and a deliberate attempt to delay an agreement."

Local 25 drivers from Boston closed the Providence terminal of the Hemingway Bros. Interstate Trucking Co. with a picket line which 50 drivers, affiliated with Local 251 of the union, refused to cross, according to Philip Hemingway, a member of the firm.

He said the question of work stoppage by drivers not affiliated with the striking Boston local was "in the hands of attorneys."

The Hemingway firm does trucking for Rhode Island merchants and textile plants to points throughout New England and in New York and New Jersey.

Today's State House meeting was another effort to bring agreement between the two factions by Chairman Charles H. Cole of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

Woman Who Killed Slayer-Mate Freed

MACHIAS, Me., Jan. 23—Mrs. Alice Drinkwater, 41, who shot and killed her husband, Thomas, 53, in Columbia at his direct order yesterday to save her own life and that of her baby, was freed of a manslaughter charge today in municipal court.

County Atty. Thomas Bridges recommended dismissal of the case for lack of evidence after Mrs. Drinkwater pleaded innocent. Sheriff Ray Foster testified she shot and killed Drinkwater in self-defense after he killed two relatives, wounded a state trooper, then threatened to kill her and the baby unless she shot him.

Mrs. Drinkwater was overjoyed when Judge Hubert Saunders ordered the case dismissed.

"Now I can go back to Columbia and my baby," she said. "It's a terrible thing but I had to do it. It was either he or the baby and myself."

She left the building with her attorney and headed back to Columbia, where the triple killing, Maine's second in 24 hours, occurred yesterday.

Other victims in the triple slaying were her daughter by a former marriage, Mrs. Glena Ellingwood, 20, and the latter's grandfather by marriage, Harley Worcester, 79. State Trooper Maynard Lindsey, brother-in-law of Mrs. Drinkwater, was wounded by Drinkwater when he came to the Worcester home after the shooting.

Police said the slaying followed a family quarrel and Mrs. Drinkwater told them her husband handed her the .32-caliber rifle and said:

"You can shoot me now or I'll shoot you and the baby."

After the gun misfired and he reloaded it and handed it back to her, she said, she shot him in the chest.

Legion Demands House Vote Now On Training Bill

By DAN MARKEL

Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—The American Legion today accused the House Rules Committee of locking up the Universal Military Training bill, and demanded the measure be sent immediately to the House Floor to permit all Congressmen a free and fair vote on the vital security issue.

Over the signature of John Thomas Taylor, National Legion legislative director, the Legion's position was stated in open letters sent Rules Committee Chairman Leo E. Allen, (R.) of Illinois, and 11 other members of the committee. They are:

Clarence Brown, (R.) of Ohio; James W. Wadsworth, (R.) of New York; Forest A. Harness, (R.) of Indiana; J. Edgar Cheadle, (R.) of Colorado; Ross Rile, (R.) of Oklahoma; Christian A. Herter, (R.) of Massachusetts; Robert F. Rich, (R.) of Pennsylvania; Adolph J. Sabath, (D.) of Illinois; E. E. Cox, (D.) of Georgia; Howard W. Smith, (D.) of Virginia, and J. Bayard Clark, (D.) of North Carolina.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., (R.) of Massachusetts, also got a copy.

Taylor's letter read: "Your committee today has complete and final authority over House action leading to a vote on H. R. 4278, the Universal Military Training bill."

GAGGED BY COMMITTEE
"That power carries with it responsibility."

"It is a responsibility on which the American Legion, more than 200 other organizations, and millions of patriotic American citizens believe the security of our nation depends."

"Proper exercise of that responsibility, the American Legion believes, is for your committee to bring this legislation to the floor of the House immediately for debate, discussion and a vote. However, the course which your 12-member committee appears to have followed and to be following to date, is to pigeon-hole or gag this measure to prevent its reaching the House floor."

"If pursued by your committee, this latter course prevents the remaining 423 members of the House recording officially their position on this vital security legislation."

"This is not the American way, nor in our legislative and representative traditions."

ALL ARGUMENTS HEARD

"There is no valid excuse for further hobbling this legislation and preventing a vote by House membership. All the arguments pro and con on the issue have been heard, most of them repeatedly for the past 27 years. No citizen, and certainly no congressman, could plead ignorance of the program for preparedness proposed in H. R. 4278."

Jury Weighs Tobin Case

The $100,000 suit of James Tobin, brother of the former Governor, against the Boston Herald, went to the jury this afternoon in Suffolk Superior Court after Judge Raoul H. Beaudreau earlier denied a defense motion for a directed verdict.

In final arguments, Atty. Francis P. Garland told the jury that the plaintiff suffered mental distress as a result of Herald stories that during his brother's administration he ruled patronage with an iron hand. Garland asked that he be awarded substantial damages.

Atty. Stuart C. Rand, defense counsel, denied that the newspaper had defamed Tobin and stated that the implication in a story headed, "Clear It With Jimmy," was justified. The case was placed in the jury's hands after Judge Beaudreau delivered his charge.

Testimony in the case ended after William E. Mullins, political writer for the Herald, was recalled to the stand as a rebuttal witness, and the jury had heard the plaintiff's brother, former Gov. Maurice J. Tobin, also testify in rebuttal.

ings have been held, concluded, and the bill reported with House armed services committee recommendation that it pass.

"Every member of the Congress has had ample time and opportunity to study and analyze the bill now snarled in your committee."

"The American Legion has such confidence in our representatives in Congress that it assumes each and every one has done so."

"Every member of Congress has been personally informed by substantial numbers of his constituency of their views on this legislation."

"Every member has received, the American Legion is informed, numerous petitions from voters in his district urging swift enactment of the pending measure."

"Every member of Congress knows that public opinion nationally and regionally is more than two to one in favor of a universal military training program—now!"

Curley pointed out that the 333 provisional firemen who were among the 461 appointed were all trained fire fighters, many with three years experience. He said he felt it was proper under the circumstances to appoint these "expert fire fighters who had proved their courage and efficiency."

He told the group they would be appointed to the department in numerical order, adding that 20 appointments will be made within a few days.

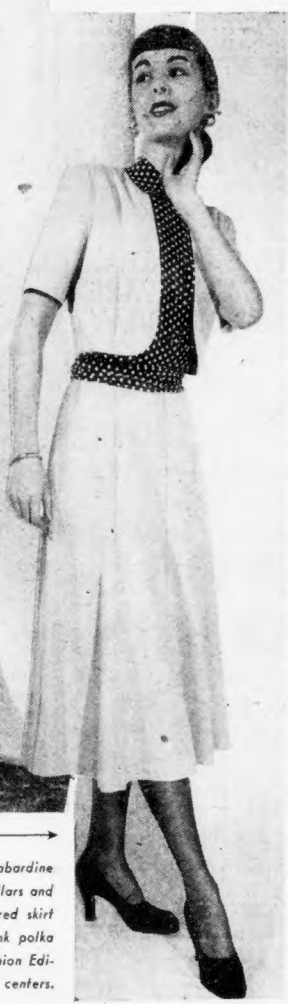

He also pointed out that the Civil Service list has 22 months to run and predicted that the entire group will be taken into the fire department before it expires.

Curley today met with a group of 35 veterans who protested that despite having passed written and physical examination, they were not appointed to the fire department last week when 461 men were named as permanent members.

The mayor called the men to his office after learning they had been unsuccessful in their attempt to obtain an appointment in a telephone call to his secretary, Frank B. Howland.

Princess Rushes Into Waiting Arms Of King Michael

DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 23 (AP)—Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma rushed into the arms of former King Michael of Romania and kissed him today. The princess arrived by train with her mother, Princess Margarethe, for her first meeting with 26-year-old Michael since he quit the throne of Romania nearly a month ago. He was waiting for her in a jeep.

"Hello, Michael," said the princess' mother.

The jeep, driven by one of Michael's aides, took the party to Michael's hotel, a short distance from the railroad station.

Maj. Jacques Vergotti, aide to Michael, told reporters there would be no secret wedding here. Michael and Vergotti came secretly from Lausanne to this winter sports center for a skiing holiday.

Only about a half dozen persons were on the station platform when the princess' train arrived. Anne, 26, was hatless. Her blonde hair, attractively arranged, was ruffled by the winter wind. She smiled happily.

Michael wore his ski costume of dark trousers tucked into boots, tan jacket and cap.

Piled on the station platform were the 10 pieces of luggage brought by Anne and her mother. There were also two pairs of skis. These recalled the remark of her father, Prince Rene, in St. Moritz recently that he knew nothing of the couple's immediate plans, but he had received a bill for two pairs of skis.

"There're engaged, all right," Prince Rene had said.

Michael and Anne met at the London wedding of Princess Elizabeth last year and subsequently holidayed together in Switzerland before he returned to Bucharest and she to Copenhagen.

Taken to Waltham Hospital, the woman was suffering second and third degree burns of the head, face and body.

Police said she told them a gas oven back-fired.

The couple were victims of fumes from a kitchen stove. Farrell was restored to partial consciousness after prolonged treatment with an inhalator.

Dutch Girl Tended GI's Grave—Now Bride Here

WORCESTER, Jan. 23 (AP)—For more than two years in a cemetery in Margraten, Holland, Isabella T. Bradener tended the grave of Lt. Otto Reich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reich of Webster.

In appreciation, the Reichs invited her to visit them. She arrived last August. Through them she met Oliver W. Reil of Oxford. She and Reil were married here yesterday.

Bridegroom-Thief Killed by Cop

PITTSFIELD, Jan. 23—Only a few minutes after he quarreled with his bride of weeks, a youth turned burglar early today and paid with his life when he bungled his first job and was cut down by police bullets, authorities stated. Edward J. Uskitis, 25, of North Pearl st., tried to patch up his differences with his bride, Rose Mary, 18, at the home of her mother in North st., police said.

When he failed, he stormed out of the house and broke into a shop only 500 feet away in North st., the Drapery and Fabric shop. He was seen by three passersby and they shouted to a rookie policeman, Clark Knight, Jr., 25.

Knight said that as he approached the shop he heard the crash of glass as Uskitis kicked out the front door in a desperate bid for freedom.

The rookie said he watched the burglar dash out of the shop, past the passersby, and dodge behind parked cars as he headed for Eagle st. Knight took up the chase and fired three warning shots in the air.

The fleeing form gave no sign of slackening speed, Knight said, and he aimed the next two shots at the man. Both took effect, the first smashing into Uskitis' left hand and the other piercing his back and penetrating into his stomach.

On the recommendation of Asst. U. S. Atty. Edward D. Hassan, Comm. Rogers continued bail at $2000. MacCalmon is alleged to have taken bank funds for betting on the horses.

 Elaine M. McNamee of Park st., Worcester, pleaded in municipal court today that she sounded a false alarm of fire in Park sq. at 3 p. m. Judge Daniel J. Gillen held her in $50 for disposition of the case tomorrow.

Denies Illegal Dental Practice

A Roslindale woman, who started as a bookkeeper 20 years ago and by her studies became the owner of the dental laboratory she now operates, denied in municipal court today that she had practiced dentistry unlawfully, as a Roxbury widow complained.

The defendant, Miss Harriett Johnson, 47, of Brookdale rd., was charged in two counts, one of performing an operation on the lower jaw of Mrs. Alice A. Angel of Akron st., Roxbury, and one of taking an impression of the same lower jaw.

Mrs. Angel testified Miss Johnson had induced her to go to her Boylston st. laboratory where an impression of her jaw was taken and a set of teeth made. The plate was unsatisfactory, she said, and resulted in an infection which Miss Johnson lanced, causing a worse condition.

Miss Johnson denied making the impression. She testified she manufactured the plate from an impression taken by a dentist. She also denied lancing the resulting infection.

Judge Daniel J. Gillen continued the case until next Wednesday.

2 Men Die in Blaze Started by Firemen

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 23 (AP)—Two men died early today, fatally burned in a blaze lit by the city fire department. The victims were sleeping in a weed patch firemen started to burn off to get rid of a fire hazard.

They were horrified to see two screaming figures, clothes ablaze, leap up and run wildly about in agony. District Fire Chief Hayden Marrs and a spectator ran down Cleon Clarence Bain, 42, and smothered the flames in an overcoat. The other, Jimmie Lewis, 42, was reached only when he collapsed.

South End Youth Fined For Breaking Girl's Door

Robert W. Young, 25, of Massachusetts ave., South End, was fined $50 in municipal court today for assault and battery on Miss Myrtle Prendergast, 25, of Worcester st., and malicious destruction of property—the glass in her apartment door.

Lucky Boy, Shot
By .45, Survives

The luckiest fellow in New England today was happily stretched out on a cot at Chelsea Memorial Hospital as amazed doctors were still trying to explain how he could be shot with a .45 caliber bullet and suffer no serious effects.

Leo Bikowski, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bikowski of Arlington st., Chelsea, was playing with a chum who produced a .45 caliber pistol.

The powerful weapon, presumably empty, went off in the chum's hand as he stood just behind Leo. The big slug tore into the boy's back and popped out of his chest. He was rushed to the hospital where doctors finally established that the slug somehow had failed to strike a vital spot and the boy was in no danger.

Jap Recalls Bravery of U. S. Woman Slain Aboard Nip Ship

TOKYO, Jan. 23 (AP)—Testimony that the American wife of a British flying officer bravely met death on a Japanese submarine with a cheery "sayonara"—good-by—to the enemy crew today ended a four-year search for her.

Jiro Nakahara, 28, Hawaiian-born Japanese member of the sub crew, told this story as a surprise rebuttal witness at the war crimes trial of former Premier Tojo and 24 others:

Mrs. Verna Gordon Britain, former American Red Cross worker, was en route to join her husband in Calcutta when the Dutch ship Tjalsak was sunk in the Indian Ocean in March, 1944.

Nakahara was called to the sub's conning tower to order survivors to come aboard, one by one. They were led below deck, questioned, returned to the deck and shot to death, one by one.

Mrs. Britain told the sub's senior officer that she had been in Japan before the war.

"The senior officer said to me in Japanese that she would have to be shot. I did not tell her. I could not look her in the face. She told me she knew what was going to happen."

"The senior officer told me to ask her if she wanted to be blindfolded and her hands tied. She said she did not. Just before she left, she said sayonara—the sayonara was addressed to all the crew."

Lt. W. Slater of the British Naval Reserve who has been investigating the case said a survivor of the Dutch ship not taken aboard the submarine had reported she was the only woman captured.

Nakahara said the submarine commander informed him naval headquarters had ordered the execution of all survivors of ship sinkings. Adm. Shigetaro Shimada of the Japanese general staff, a defendant, has denied issuing such orders.

Diaper Institute to Give Pin Emblem to Fathers

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 23 (AP)—The National Institute of Diaper Sales today took the wraps off its latest brain-child—a pin for pop.

Instituting said it expected the sty-pin-shaped emblem to join as 3,000,000 men into a great fraternity known as the "Expert Fathers Club."

Bavaria in Grip Of General Strike

MUNICH, Jan. 23 (AP)—Most of Bavaria was paralyzed today by a general strike of up to 1,000,000 workers. They were called out by union leaders to protest food shortages.

The strike started at midnight and was to last 24 hours. Interruptions in many areas were thought would continue through Saturday and Sunday. It was the largest mass labor walkout in Germany since the war.

Diet Deficiency Can Cause Cancer

12 By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 23 (AP)— Discovery diet alone can cause cancer in rats, made two years ago at the agricultural experiment station of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has brought on experiments with other animals.

This brings a new angle into cancer, the fact malignant growths can be caused by too little food as well as by too much.
The rats got cancer from too little choline, sometimes called a B vitamin, but identified by the Alabama experts as an organic base.
Lacking choline, rats got cancers in muscles, bladders, lungs and livers. Thus same deficiency is now being tried on chickens and on dogs.

HERE'S WHY
YOU SHOULD USE
15% LESS HEATING OIL
THIS WINTER

The heating oil supply situation is critical. Unless you and all other users of heating oil burn 15% less than normal during January, February and March, your home may be cold! Today the industry's production is the greatest in history—BUT—still not enough to meet the record demand.
To save your 15%, take these steps now: Set thermostat at 68°... turn down to 60° at night or when away... keep radiators off in all unused rooms... use fireplace whenever possible—keep flues closed when not in use.

Suing Hubby Citing 9 Rivals Denies He Had Girl Friends

Richard C. Latons, 26, of Norwood st., Manchester, who testified his attractive young wife, Helen, 22, had nine boy friends, denied in Salem Probate Court today her charges he was friendly with other women.

Latons, a contractor, admitted he was in a Beverly hotel drinking with James Backman, Manchester, one of his alleged rivals for his wife's affections, but insisted there was no truth to the story he and Backman took two girls out riding in his truck.

The husband's testimony, under cross-examination, highlighted today's hearing of the Latons' cross-divorce suits. He charges infidelity and she alleges cruelty. Both seek custody of a daughter, 6.

Questioned about his story yesterday that he found Backman kissing and in other intimacies with his wife, while his children 2, had been fed so much beer she was drunk, Latons admitted today the report of the child's drinking had been told him and he had not seen it himself.

"But I believe it," he added. Latons stated emphatically he would not paint his wife "any blacker than she is" just to get custody of their daughter.

"I no longer have any love for her," he testified.

Latons told the court he did not know the names of two of his wife's friends. He identified the others as "Louie," Paul Gannett, a fisherman, Backman, Ernest Crandall, Harold Robert, a soldier, Maxwell, and "Red," a grocery truck driver. He said Red even used his razor and never cleaned it afterwards.

18 Pauley in Outburst, Demands Right to Confront Stassen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen said today Edwin W. Pauley made $40,175 on grain trades after a speech by Sec. Anderson pushed prices down, and $36,860 on lard and oil deals patterned closely to Agriculture Department buying.

The lard trades were such as to make inescapable the conclusion that they were guided by more than coincidence, Stassen contended before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee which is looking into Pauley's commodity speculations.

Pauley, wealthy oil man, who is a special assistant to Army Sec.

Royall, sat nearby as Stassen testified. Twice he leaped up, shaking a finger, and demanding a chance to confront Stassen "face to face" and reply to "these falsehoods."

"We are going to give you an opportunity to be heard," Chairman Ferguson said.

"Today?" Pauley demanded.

"We are going to give you an opportunity to be heard," Ferguson said again.

At the second outburst from Pauley, Ferguson pounded the table and announced the hearing was recessed for lunch.

Stassen told the Senators that Pauley took advantage of an "off the cuff" talk by Anderson on Sept. 19 in which Anderson said grain prices were not realistic.

"These statements, which of course were not correct, caused a temporary drop in grain prices," Stassen said.

The bulk of the Pauley profits which Stassen traced to the Anderson talk came from the purchase of 100,000 bushels of wheat. Stassen said he held it for nine days and reaped a profit of $33,475.

He also bought 100,000 bushels of oats futures on the same day, Sept. 22, and sold it Nov. 12 at a profit of $6700, Stassen asserted. He said the purchases followed closely an informal talk by Anderson at Chicago in which he said that "if the public finally becomes aware of the facts about this year's wheat crop, the bottom would drop out of the market."

Stassen quoted Anderson as saying "we've plenty of wheat."

Three days later after prices had dropped as a result of Anderson's remarks, Stassen continued, Pauley made his purchases and then the Department of Agriculture purchased an extraordinary amount of wheat, flour, and oats, and the price of grains climbed sharply.

Bridges Charges Pauley Kin Also Profited

Sen. Styles Bridges (R.) of

New Hampshire, charged in Boston today, that at least three members of Edwin Pauley's family as well as Pauley himself had made huge profits in speculation on the grain market.

Northeast in for Increasing Quakes, Harvard Man Says

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—An increasing number of earthquakes in the northeastern United States and southeastern Canada is predicted by L. Don Leet, professor of seismology at Harvard.

In a book, "Causes of Catastrophes," published today, Dr. Leet discusses the area as New England, New York, eastern Pennsylvania, northern New Jersey, a large area of Canada north of Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river to its mouth, and Nova Scotia.

Dr. Leet says the present epoch of increasing quakes probably has not yet passed a climax. He describes planes of weakness, lines where the earth can slip, one side of the line in one direction, the other in a different direction.

Planes of probable weakness are known around New York city, through Connecticut and elsewhere in New England. Some of the weak spots are very old and seem very deep.

First-class modern building construction, he says, is almost automatically earthquake-proof. This is particularly true of the large buildings in a city like New York.

But the northeast is not specially protected against the greatest peril from quakes. This is fire. Nor is it protected against the side to side form of quaking that can tumble ceilings down on children in some types of school buildings.

Critics Cool to Britain's Costly 'Karennina' Film

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A $2,800,000 British film version of "Anna Karenina" drew a cool reception today. Some critics thought Vivien Leigh's title role did not compare with Greta Garbo's a decade ago. There was praise, however, for Sir Ralph Richardson as Anna's husband in the Tolstoy plot. The Alexander Doolittle production is intended as a prestige offering for the world market.

"I am deeply grateful if a too simple faith in the effectiveness of a plain denial has misled any considerable number concerning my intentions and so allowed them to spend time and effort under erroneous impressions. At the risk of appearing pompous, I must say that the honor paid me cannot fail to spur me, in future years, to work the more diligently for America, her youth, her veterans, and all her citizens, and for the continuance of peace."

"I trust that this rather lengthy explanation will convince you that my conclusions are not only sound but have been arrived at objectively and have not been unduly influenced by my own desires and convenience. In any event, my decision to remove myself completely from the political scene is definite and positive. I know you will not object to my making this letter public to inform all interested persons that I could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me."

"With warm personal regard,

"Sincerely,

"DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER."

Eisenhower is scheduled to go on terminal leave from the Army around Feb. 15 and in June will become president of Columbia University.

LEADING DARK HORSE

His name not only has been entered through a delegate slate in the first presidential primary of the year in New Hampshire, but Republican supporters also entered his name in the Oregon primary in May.

Only yesterday some of his supporters announced they would make an effort to put him in the California primary, also scheduled for May.

Eisenhower has been regarded as a leading "dark horse" for the 1948 Republican nomination for many months.

Only this week members of the Republican National Committee, meeting here, had many huddles over the so-called Eisenhower threat.

Backer Praises Ike, But Regrets Decision

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Leonard V. Finder, publisher of the Manchester (N.H.) Union-Leader, whom Gen. Eisenhower informed of his refusal to accept high political office, said today he regrets the general's refusal.

Finder, in New York on business, said he had not yet received the text of Eisenhower's letter but that it was read to him by telephone. Finder said:

"His sentiment proves him to be an even greater man than we thought he was when we first decided he was the best qualified man for President."

"I feel that his decision, honestly motivated as it might have been, was not in the best service of the nation."

Meanwhile, W. A. Jamison, Jr., assistant executive secretary of the Draft Eisenhower League, said, "We are in a draft proposition and we don't know how the statement would affect it."

A spokesman for the League which maintains headquarters here and has pushed organization of affiliates in all states said the organization would issue a statement later today.

Ike's N. H. Backers Taken by Surprise

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower's announcement today surprised his supporters in the New Hampshire March 9 primary and found them generally unprepared to comment.

H. Thornton Lorimer, former chief justice of the superior court, said he would want to study the General's comment before making any statement. The Concord lawyer has filed as a candidate for delegate at large to the GOP presidential convention, pledged to Eisenhower.

State Rep. Joseph H. Geisel, president of the New Hampshire chapter of the Draft Eisenhower for President League, declined comment. The organization has filed a full slate of eight delegates in the primary, first in the nation.

Charles W. Tobey, Jr., son of the New Hampshire senator, also declined comment at his Concord office. He said he preferred to wait until he has had a chance to read and consider the full text of Eisenhower's statement.

Tobey, Jr., also is a candidate for delegate at large pledged to the General.

Eisenhower's Action Spurs GOP Aspirants

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower's announcement is expected to increase activity on the part of followers of the four avowed candidates now in the Republican field—Gov. Dewey of New York, Sen. Taft of Ohio, former Gov. Stassen of Minnesota and Gov. Warren of California.

Sen. McCarthy (R.) of Wisconsin, a Stassen supporter, said: "That's grand."

Sen. Tydings (D.) of Maryland, mentioned as a possible running mate with President Truman on the Democratic ticket, said Eisenhower's "withdrawal foretells the election next November of President Truman."

Rep. Clarence Brown (R.) of Ohio, Taft's campaign manager, said Eisenhower's statement "makes the probability of Sen. Taft's nomination more certain."

Free Hamburg Gladdens Buyers in Meat Price War

ST. DIELENS, Ore., Jan. 23 (AP)—Hamburg went at one pound free to a customer today, picnic hams were listed at 45 cents a pound and beef roasts at 39. These bargains weren't expected to continue, however—it was a price war which followed opening of a new market.

When the new market listed hamburger at 35 cents—a 10-cent slash—another put its price at 29 and a third then came out with the offer of one pound free to a customer.

South Pole Expedition

TILTON, N. H., Jan. 23 (AP)—Death by freezing of Charles Angers, while serving with a Navy expedition in South Polar waters, was reported today to his father, Paul Angers. The elder Angers said eight others also were lost when a ship hit an iceberg.

CLEAR THEM ALL OUT

BY ASSENT of the United States Supreme Court, the principle has been established IN LAW that Communists and their fellow travelers are as unfit as Nazis for employment by the Federal Government; that they must rightfully be denied appointments to the public payrolls in any capacity, and that they must be OUSTED from any positions which they may have retained.

A few months ago the United States Supreme Court refused to review the appeal made by one Norton Friedman, who for NINE YEARS held various governmental jobs and who was finally ejected by the Civil Service Commission because of his participation in the American Peace Mobilization.

Previously, a Federal District Court and the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals had sustained the Civil Service Commission.

The Supreme Court then made the decisions of the lower courts THE LAW OF THE LAND—not only affirming an act of Congress, but also sustaining a ruling by the Commission which was even more extensive than the statute itself.

The Civil Service finding was that absolute "proof" of Communism is NOT NECESSARY to debar or dismiss a suspect from Federal employment—that such action must be taken if there is even "REASONABLE DOUBT" as to the person's "loyalty to the United States."

And the interpretation, as now fully upheld, establishes the contention that FOLLOWING THE COMMUNIST PARTY LINE provides adequate grounds for questioning an applicant's or employee's loyalty and for proceeding accordingly.

THAT ACTION by the highest court in the nation should be enough for the members of the Massachusetts Legislature.

It most certainly should be enough for the members of the Committee on Constitutional Law who are considering bills to bar Communists from the ballot and holding government jobs.

THESE BILLS SHOULD BE APPROVED BY THE COMMITTEE, PASSED BY THE LEGISLATURE AND SIGNED BY THE GOVERNOR.

To do anything less is to ignore the soundly patriotic and fully sensible example of the United States Supreme Court.

If a Communist is harmful in the federal government, how can any legislator on Beacon Hill ever justify a vote that holds the Communist to be a proper and fit person to participate in our State government?

Some of the people at Wednesday's noisy demonstration against the bills to deal adequately and prudently with the Communist conspiracy contended that Reds are an idealistic minority which can be discounted and dismissed.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

THE THIRD INTERNATIONAL, the fountainhead of the Communist conspiracy everywhere, was created by Soviet Russia to poison nations at peace—to poison the minds of youth, of labor, of the intellectuals, of minority groups.

For more than a quarter of a century the Third International has devoted itself completely and solely to this task.

To ignore or reject the bills barring Communists from the ballot and government employment in Massachusetts is to dismiss the KNOWN FACTS about the Third International and to make easier the weakening and eventual destruction of this country.

The Constitution and the Bill of Rights do not shelter the Third International or shield those who are doing the Third International's work, wittingly or unwittingly.

All members of the Massachusetts Legislature ought to know this.

They have seen what Communists did to France and to all other countries which compromised with Communism and allowed themselves to be weakened by insidious infiltration.

They cannot allow the part of the United States which they are morally and officially obliged to protect to be the next Red Fascist casualty.

IN A RECENT court case a wife testified her husband had insisted their first child be named Antoinette, saying: "In numerology Antoinette is a money-making name." I have been trying to think of women named Antoinette who have been or are great money makers. Offhand I have only been able to think of Antoinette Perry, who made much money as the producer of such plays as "Strictly Dishonorable," "Personal Appearance" and "Kiss the Boys Good-bye."

PASSING BY—Pearl Sydenstricker Buck Walsh Literary Pearl Buck. Married twice. First time to a missionary second, to a publisher. Has nine children for which to care. One by the first marriage, three of second husband's by a former marriage and five adopted. . . . Ann Avant. Highly imaginative hat designer from Hollywood. Originator of the "mistletoe hat" designed for Christmas season wear. This chapeau keeps the wearer continually under the mistletoe, being trimmed with same. "A young woman wearing a mistletoe hat on Christmas Eve might not come very interesting to a gentlemen," says Miss Avant. No doubt she would. By the way, mister, how would you like to see the good-looking lady next door come out of the house on Christmas morning wearing a mistletoe hat?

AGAINST DOGS—"Dogs Bait! Don't mention them to me," writes a Bostonian. "We've yelled three times. Somebody suggested we get a watch dog. We did. Two nights later we were robbed again. And among other things the crooks stole the watch-dog!"

ASKING—Queries from clients. Q—What became of Little Jack Little? A—He is still going strong as a piano player in Manhattan. . . . Current playing at Jack Dempsey's Restaurant, I believe. However, I am glad you didn't ask me what became of "Whispering Jack" Smith, as I don't know. Q—What's the best way to handle a Leo Woman? A—Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) women go for flattery but of the type more expressed in action than words. Pour on the so-called "little attentions." Send her a lot of little gifts. Write her love letters, including poetry. Don't contradict her too much. She can't take it. She likes to think she is smarter than you are. Or so she says the stargazers whose opinions do not necessarily agree with those of our Horses & Women experts.

WIFE MARKET—In some parts of the world wives are still bought, sold and exchanged. As for example, in Africa it is said the prices for wives are four times as high as those of the pre-war period. Recently in Africa there was reported as having been paid for a wife, the "record breaking" price of 18 head of cattle and three packages of bubble gum.

HORSES & WOMEN—Cookery school attendance by New York bachelorettes has tripled in the past year. The cause of this sudden mass cookery ambition of Manhattan-misses has not yet been determined. Some say it is because the bachelorettes want to be prepared to make a husband happy, if and when they get one. Others take a more cynical view. They say it is tougher than ever for a bachelorette to get a man to take her to dinner. That there is nothing a bachelorette hates more than to have to pick up her own dinner check. So this single girls have decided to learn how to cook their own meals at times they cannot get some impressionable male to pay for them.

ASIDES—Have just been looking at a news picture from England which shows a man smoking 16 cigars at the same time. No holder used. All cigars gripped by lips. You try to do it. . . . Now among the readers I have a tea expert of many years experience. He points out, among other things the name orange pekoe has nothing to do with the quality of the tea. It refers to the size of the leaf.

THAT CLUB—Jack Hack, La Salle, Ill., and Larry Barry, New York City, have been denied membership in the My Name Is a Poem Club by Pres. Hugh Blue, who commented: "Hack's real name is probably John. Larry's is undoubtedly Lawrence. They use melopoe for the same reason Ed Head was barred. The names on their birth certificates do not rhyme. Keep this in mind in making future nominations. Don't bother me unnecessarily. I am a busy man," said Pres. Blue returning to the study of his racing paper.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1948, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.
WE GET SO SORE in the big election years that we vote mad and pay high for the fun it gives us.

In 1912, we of the lower orders—the Democrats, that is—delighted to elect one of the historic mistakes of popular government, Woodrow Wilson. He was a supercilious, bloodless intellectual who vampired his few fanatical friends and spat out their bones like a fellow at a fish-ry. He had no more respect for the individual human being than he had for a pig and he died of a tantrum because the Senate wouldn't call him omnipotent.

Westbrook Pegler

Wilson put us into a war where he had no business on a rhetorical pretext about making the world safe for democracy, when a little backbone would have saved the world most of the horrors that have ensued.

The old Tory New York Tribune and Theodore Roosevelt and Leonard Wood were nagging Wilson to cheap heroics. The Tribune, of course, wanted to save the British empire. T. R. and Wood pictured themselves riding brewery nags up some gentle hill with faithful Rough Riders—illiterate, y'know, but the salt of the earth—bleeding nicely on white bandages. While a photograph ofstaggered the Marseillaise.

HAD WILSON SAT TIGHT a little longer, the Allies and the Kaiser would have put their heads together and traded off a few souls-for-forties and desirable corners and the world would have resumed the old groping progress toward who knows what?

Suppose Belgium had disappeared. Suppose Poland had reappeared with a king. How many countries have appeared and disappeared, how many mock democracies and ersatz kingdoms since the peace of Versailles? One excuse for that war was the morally indefensible plot of empire of Austria-Hungary. Then, instead, we got the polychrome semi-barbarian kingdom of Yugoslavia and the incompetent, self-devoting republic of Czechoslovakia.

All that and another war and now still another on the back of the stove warming up.

WE WERE DOING FINE up to 1912. William H. Taft had taken Theodore Roosevelt's place and was doing a mediocre, journeyman job and, so help me, that is the only fault we had to find with him. He was just going along from day to day and not making enough noise. We like noise.

THIS YEAR we can have Rob Taft or Tom Dewey. Taft has got political B. O. because he had the integrity to fight the horribly corrupt and ruinous union racket. I don't know how bad a handicap that is, but if the American worker has any brains he will realize that the Taft-Hartley law deprives him of nothing and protects not only him but the whole country from the most dangerous racketeers that we have had since the helter-skelter days of railroad promotion.

Taft has integrity and a sense of the importance of government to people. He did some of his growing up in the White House and, barring his school days, he has been around the works of the main plant of our government all his life. That is the way you learn to lay brick, fix a watch or any other trade.

BETWEEN TAFT and Dewey, I think I would take Dewey because he has had more actual experience in a great political administrative office and has come through with a wonderful record.

Four years ago many of our people voted for Roosevelt only because we were at war, forgetting that he wasn't above steering us into war just to put the voters into that very fix. Otherwise, Dewey might have been elected.

Dewey has one bad fault. In 1945 he okayed the Wagner Act just in the vain hope of whitening off a few CIO votes. He might better have saved his breath and his self-esteem. He knows it is a rotten law. But he was the only way to get anywhere in politics in to get elected and the only way to get elected is to get votes.

DEWEY IS A GREAT team-worker. I saw him as district attorney, and that staff of his was like a good football team. They worked all hours, and Tom always was willing to let some fellow take the ball on the touchdown play who had done a lot of blocking on the way down.

When they nominated the handsome stranger in 1940, Dewey worked as hard for the fellow as he would have for any other party man. But in 1944, Wilkie merely "endorsed" Tom and sucked his foot because he had lost out in the Wisconsin primary.

This year, if the Republicans turn Tom down, whether for Taft or whomsoever, you will find him out on the tubs again, working for the candidate.

"Okay, okay, call the cops—I just CAN'T take it no more!"

Ex-Tammany Man's Widow Seeks Vast Pirate Treasure

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP)—The widow of a once-wealthy Tammany Hall leader said today she has two maps showing the location of $76,000,000 in pirate gold and is seeking a contractor to recover the treasure.

Mrs. Bula Edmundson Croker, 64, widow of Richard C. Croker, said she owns the land where the maps show the gold was buried in the years 1781-1783, about 40 miles from Pensacola.

She said the maps place gold and other valuables in 23 feet of water in a bayou, and she believes the treasure is resting on rock bottom about 38 feet below the surface.

She disclosed she had written J. P. Conway, contractor now digging for gold in Green Cove Springs, and added:

"This fellow seems to know his business. I think he can find this gold, but he may have to sink a cofferdam to get it."

Conway said he received the letter and planned to contact Mrs. Croker, but his first job is to complete the search for $4,000,000 in pirate loot believed buried on the main street of Green Cove Springs.

Mrs. Croker said her maps were brought to this country from Madrid by a man named Andrea who became ill and died in the home of Jacob Faust. She said the maps were handed down to Faust's grandson, Capt. Walter M. Brown, who gave them to her in 1936. One of the maps shows the location of $4,000,000 and the other $72,000,000, Mrs. Croker said.

Unmailed Card Revealed Bigamist

If it weren't for an unmailed post card, George W. E. Perry might have continued deceiving women across the country and living on their money.

But the post card, revealed by his wife, Kathryn, revealed the existence of at least one other woman in George's life. Upon checking, Kathryn learned that she was married to a bigamist.

How her discovery led to Perry's capture as a killer, as well as a gay deceiver, will be told in the Peter Levins story, "Case of the Unmailed Post Card," in Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Hurt Battle on Lure Killing Autobiography

EVADA CITY, Cal., Jan. 23 (AP)—A document described as a jail-written autobiography of Alvin L. Hardy aroused new doubts by counsel today in the trial of the 24-year-old defendant in the "kiss of death" slaying of a racing motorist.

The prosecution asked permission to introduce the life story written by the North Kittery, Me., defendant, Hardy's attorney objected.

The State yesterday introduced a confession which said the motorist, J. W. McLain, was lured to his death in a mountain pasture last night by Hardy's common law wife, Lois. Tried separately, Mrs. Hardy, recently, was sentenced to death.

"With the promise of a body," the statement said, "we three walked into the woods. Lois took him in her arms. Lois and McLain kissed and as Lois turned his head I shot him in the head.

"I could see he wasn't dead, so I shot him two more times. He was still breathing. Lois took his pulse and then I hit him in the head with a rock."

"I removed his watch, his wallet and car keys. We drove his car away and I threw the gun in a big lake on the way."

WHAT THE DAY BRINGS FORTH

(A Complete Short Story)

By EDITH BROWN KIRKWOOD

WHEN Betty Riley went into the chief's room to talk over the day's assignment it was just routine. A welfare worker knew what lay ahead. It might be more of the same but sometimes "the same" turned into something different. This morning the chief just smiled a good morning and said:

Check up on your old charges, Miss Riley. I understand Grandpa Perkins is sick again. And hard luck has paid another visit to little Jenny Baker, so she is in need of help."

"I'd not call that 'another visit,'" Betty put in. "Hard luck just comes and stays with Jenny Baker. While I am in that neighborhood, I'll drop in on old Mrs. Corning, too."

"I hear Jim's back," returned the chief.

"So?" queried Betty. "Well, that may be good for Mother Corning. She's an old dear and deserves a better son than lazy Jim, but he's the light of her life. It's another case of everyone being out of step but Jim, as far as she is concerned, I'll go on a look-see as to what's happening." She turned to leave the room.

Truth was, she was glad there was no big job for the day. Her mind wasn't on her work, really. She was thinking of Phil Chapman and a puzzle he was trying to solve. Phil was one of the best plumbers in the city—no, to those in need of a top-tracer of lawbreakers. He was that and apparently a something more. He was 33. His BETTY, a welfare worker, who finds that PHIL, the plainclothesman, has an interest in one of her cases. Their meeting touches off a tragedy, and then—wholesome, gracious in manner, none of the wary suspect him until it was too late to escape.

Cases had been coming up which called for cooperation between him and Betty's respective fields and he had grown accustomed to discussing others with her. Only the night before he had confided to her:

THE THIEF THAT DEFIED CAPTURE

"It's the darndest case I've had in a long time. What makes one downright sore is that it seems so simple. After all these years I ought to be able to reach out and grab the culprit without further ado. Piffing! That's what it is."

"Some sharp sneak thief who probably looks innocent. But he knows values. Doesn't take anything big whether it's from a swank jeweler's or a coed's dormitory room. Just small, choice pieces—rings and pins and the like, easily disposed of."

"Reward?" asked Betty. Phil shook his head. "No, nothing but the satisfaction of catching the thief. He has started more slippery getaways than a big timer. Hurts my pride to miss him," he added, frankly. "Can't even locate his fence, yet he's got to be hiding that loot some place."

Today Betty wasn't sure whether she was worried about the thievings—or Phil. She realized that the persistence of the petty pilferings was irking the force, and more than anything she wanted Phil to win.

Grandpa, she found, was getting better and needed little beyond a cheerful visitor. She was able, too, to help tiny Jenny and she went her way to old Mrs. Corning with some feeling of satisfaction rose-tinted her keen over Phil's difficulties. Musing, as she went along, more or less unmindful of the familiar surroundings, she became conscious of a new note on the scene. A car was parked opposite the Corning flat. Cars were not so numerous in this neighborhood as to pass unnoticed, but for Betty, at the moment, it was more a catching of her eye than her interest. She tripped up the steps and tapped the bell which she heard tinkle in Mrs. Corning's rooms beyond.

Mrs. Corning always looked forward to Betty's calls and she gave the accustomed hearty greeting when she flung open the door and found Betty waiting.

"And how is my good Mrs. Corning today?" Betty asked, cheerily. "Happy, I venture, for I hear Jim's back."

If Mrs. Corning answered, Betty was not mindful of the reply for, before her sat Phil! Must have been Phil's car she had seen parked across the street! Betty caught her breath quickly and, as Mrs. Corning turned to close the door, the swift glance which swept between Betty and Phil said more plainly than words, to each other.

"We are strangers! Understand!"

Each understood, but their snatches at Betty's heart. Phil's calls had a meaning and here was Phil! At Mrs. Corning's! It couldn't be that Jimmy! Oh, no, Jimmy might be a loafer but not a thief! Yet she was troubled.

"If I knew your name," Mrs. Corning was saying to Phil. "Chapman," answered Phil.

"Well, Miss Riley this is Mr. Chapman. You know, Mr. Chapman, I call Miss Riley my good fairy. She waves a wand and brings me food and warmth. But best of all she lets me talk of my boy Jimmy. The dear lad's with me again. She went on. 'I'm mending' for him now.' She held up an ancient flannel shirt. 'It's old and I'll have to go searchin' for old-time buttons to match the few left on it, but it's good and warm. Jim may not be as hearty as some, Miss Riley, but he's a good boy.'

"It's Jim I want to talk about, too, Mrs. Corning," Phil's manner was gentle, but Betty winced. "Rather, I'd like to talk to Jim, if he's at home."

VICTORY WITHOUT JOY OR TRIUMPH

"He isn't at home right now," Mrs. Corning looked up, wonderingly. "He was to spend the night with some friends and"—heavy steps in the kitchen interrupted. She whirled toward the sound as if in involuntary protection, and in the sudden movement her outstretched hand hit the box with its collection of old-fashioned buttons which stood on the table. It fell, spilling its contents over the floor just as Jim, unmindful of callers, stepped into the room.

On the floor before them lay a tale that needed no voicing. Diamonds winked from exquisite pins and rings. There were ruby-set earrings, pearls and emeralds. It was a smart hiding place. Into the treacherous silence of the revelation the oath Jim hurled at his mother was confession enough.

"Now see what you've done!" he snarled. "I told you to let that old shirt alone!"

"Jimmy!" cried Mrs. Corning, and collapsed.

"I guess Jim," said Phil, as he slipped the handcuffs over Jim's wrists, "we'll not have that interview here. There's a special place for such talks. Come along." He hesitated. "How much does she know about this?" he asked, indicating Mrs. Corning.

"Not a d— thing," Jim blubbered. "I thought I had a catch on that old button box. It's been back on the shelf since I was a kid. Why she had to get it out today—"

"He stopped. Sobs were running from Mrs. Corning as Betty tried to comfort her. "You'll have to bring her along," Phil turned to Betty.

"She may be innocent but that has to be found out."

"Yes," faltered Mrs. Corning. "I'll go along. That is where I ought to be—by Jim."

It was a sorrowful ride to the police station. The day had brought forth the answer to the puzzle but the triumph had no joy in it.

In the evening, as Betty and Phil were having dinner together at a favorite eating spot, Phil said, musingly:

"Heck of a lot of trouble folks cause others. Sometimes I'm tempted to chuck people and buy a farm so I can associate with God's clean earth and animals."

"I like cows," said Betty, smiling.

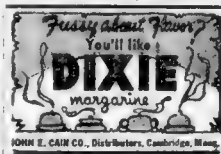

For the first time that evening Phil gave a hearty laugh. He reached across the table and took Betty's hand.

"All right, honey," he said. "Let's go."

Anti-Tummyache Candy Developed

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23 (AP) you.—The test-tube experts have come through again this time with an anti-tummyache candy.

Development of the candy was announced by the U.S. Southern Research Laboratory, which said among its other assets the candy also tasted good and was good for

Dr. L. F. Martin and associates said it is chockful of proteins to offset the carbohydrates which in other candy, along with overstuffing, produce stomach pains. The product, derived from peanuts and soybeans, is being tested by manufacturers.

Smart Set Debs Plan Teas

By BETTY ALDEN

BOSTON DEBUTANTES are writing a gay poster to the most brilliant deb season in many years by inaugurating a series of Friday afternoon tea dances in the Crystal Ballroom of Hampshire House.

The parties will be reminiscent of the flapper era when every society girl danced her way into a gay week-end at a Friday tea dance followed by dinners, balls and football or hockey games.

Five 1947-48 debs are sponsors for the new subscription series which begins Feb. 6 with tea dances every fortnight, Feb. 20, March 5 and 19, and April 2. There will be two hours of dancing with Jack Marshall striking up the band.

The debutante sponsors are Jane Cox, Claire Fuller, Lydia Lund, who made her debut in the ballroom at Hampshire House Jan. 11, and Molly Reynolds. Mrs. Preston Gilbert, Jr., is in charge of subscriptions.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Anna Easton, Poor of New York to Lindsay Marc Parrott Jr., Harvard senior, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Easton Poor of Park avenue and Locust, N. J. The future bride attended Brearley School and Bennington. She made her debut in New York in 1946 and belongs to the Colony Club.

Young Mr. Parrott is the son of L. M. Parrott, New York correspondent in Tokyo, and Ursula Parrott, the author. He is grandson of the late Dr. and Mrs. Henry Towle of Boston. He graduated from Brook School, No. Andover, in 1941 before joining the Marines, and served in the Pacific theater. His Harvard clubs are D. T. and Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1770.

NOTES FROM OUR CUE: Mrs. Benjamin Forde of Brookline was hostess at a tea at her home yesterday for the committee planning a Patisserie Internationale at the Mardi Gras Ball, Jan. 30, in the Hotel Statler Ballroom to benefit International Insurance House. Mrs. Forde and Mrs. Nina Ouspensky are co-chairmen of the Patisserie which will present pastries and hors d'oeuvres of a dozen foreign lands made and donated by Boston women.

It is disheartening to see the flowering shrubs broken by the weight of so many snowstorms. Several of our friends have sent the youngsters out to the garden to salvage the broken branches of lilac and dogwood because when brought in the house the leaves soon pop into bloom to lend a feathery springlike green to the living room.

Mrs. William Dana Orcutt's fifth Morning of Diversion will be Jan. 28 at New England Mutual Hall with Mrs. Florence Fraser Ludgate in a charming program of piano portraits based on several musical classics. Coffee will be served before the program, with Miss Amy Sacker in charge of pourers.

MEMBERS of Theta Upsilon Sorority will gather from far and near for their annual Founders' Day celebration tomorrow. Reunions in the afternoon will be followed by a banquet at the Hotel Continental, Cambridge. Special guests will include Miss Elsie Melville, Dean of Women at Boston University, and Miss Ruth Woodruff, Dean of Women at New Hampshire U.

Mrs. Edward Wood of Wakefield is in charge of the dinner assisted by Miss Ida Porter, West Medford; Miss Esther Drew, Waverly; Mrs. Robert Clough, Danvers, and Miss Kathleen Shreve, Newburyport. Mrs. George Caragone of Newtonville, president of the Boston Association of Theta Upsilon will preside.

Bill Seeks Tenure For Town Clerks

A bill seeking tenure of office for town clerks in 312 Massachusetts communities was endorsed today by the Massachusetts Town Clerks' Ass'n.

Arthur J. Shinnars, president of the association and town clerk in Brookline, said already 280 clerks have indicated support of the bill and many will be on hand to favor it when it is brought up for consideration before the legislative committee on towns at a hearing in Room 431 at the State House Tuesday, Jan. 27 at 10:30 a.m.

In endorsing the bill Shinnars pointed out the clerk's office is primarily a record office, administrative and ministerial, but absolutely nonpolitical.

Under the bill an individual would be required to serve in the office of town clerk for five years before the position could be put on the ballot by referendum for tenure.

Gifts for Housewarming

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: My husband and I have been invited to a housewarming . . . a "surprise" housewarming to be given for a young couple who have just recently moved into a new house they have bought. The party is to be given by a group of their friends, and although we are not intimate friends of the couple, we are devoted to them and are delighted to be invited to the party. Is it customary to take a gift to this kind of party? If so, what would you suggest we take?"

Although it isn't necessary to take a gift to a surprise housewarming, I believe that you will find that most of the guests will bring something for the new home. Your gift might be some gadget they will find very useful in the kitchen or for buffet service, or a set of tea or buffet or cocktail napkins, or six or eight glasses or silver- or dessert plates, or any other item of household equipment you think they will welcome.

Also very welcome, Miss Fry, as a housewarming gift, is something edible... a large cheese or a group of smaller cheeses, a basket or box of various kinds of jams or jellies, a group of salad-making ingredients, a box of herbs, several jars or cans of fruits... any of these or similar "eats" to be decoratively packaged.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN
As a mother, I would like to ask you this question: Is it considered proper for a 20-year-old

A black and white portrait of a woman with a warm smile. Her hair is styled in a voluminous, wavy fashion typical of the mid-20th century. She is wearing a dark, possibly sequined or textured, top and a long, dark beaded necklace. The background is dark and out of focus.

BRIGHTER than bright . . . that's how Columbia filmstress, Adele Jergen's highlighted face seems to appear. And at it should . . . what with fashion demanding of beauty a cleaner, softer, brighter complexion to be in tune with the reclaimed femininity akin to quality of the Dresden Doll. While we are not advocating a cherub's complexion . . . we are urging a new vibrancy for the facial expanse.

Yes, such a visit is proper (1) IF the girl receives a direct invitation (by word of mouth, by telephone or by note) from the young man's mother or whoever is the hostess of his home, and (2) IF the girl's family approves of the friendship and the visit.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My husband and I have just received an invitation to a wedding which is to take place in a large metropolitan hotel. On the invitation there is no mention of a reception, and no mention of a ceremony, and there was no R.S.V.P. engraved on the invitation. Should we reply to this invitation, even though a reply is not required? And, if so, what right is there to take for granted that there is to be a reception and that we are invited to it? L. L.

Since you didn't tell me the form of the invitation I cannot say there is no reception and that you are invited to it. However, I imagine that there is to be a reception, and that you are invited. In any case, I urge

COMPLEXION COCKTAIL

Now let us tell you about the companion strawberry lotion. It would seem that the amazing work done by the lemon cream would be enough to nourish the face, but this strawberry lotion, compounded from the juice of the fresh fruit, gives the last soothing, satisfying touch. It is applied directly to the skin after the lemon cream has been wiped off with a soft tissue. Its equal as a complexion cocktail is hard to find for this time of year.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

THE Chef held up a big stewing chicken. "It is not always a mark of contempt to be called an old hen," he said. "She is not young, she is not beautiful, but she has plenty of good meat."

"Excellent for fricassee," I remarked. "This is a fine plump bird. And she has a good clear light complexion and few pin feathers. A fat hen always insures a good dish."

PROPERLY PREPARED

"If she is properly prepared and cooked," added the Chef. "There are two ways we can make this old bird tender, by long, slow cooking below the boiling point, or by pressure cooking, which is quick and to the point. In any case I shall remove the excess fat and render to use in frying or as shortening in crust for meat pies. And I shall prepare the bird for cooking by your method," he concluded.

The Chef singed the bird by turning it over and over close to a low gas flame. Then he took the broad kitchen tweezers and out came the pin feathers in no time. A quick exploration to be sure the bird had been properly drawn—the cutting of the little yellow oil sac from the tail—and he was ready to cut off the feet. "These I shall thoroughly wash and add to the stock pot," he remarked. "A very bit of this old hen must be made to pay a food dividend." Then into a pan of sudsy water, for a good scrubbing, always with a mild soap; a thorough rinsing and drying, and the bird was ready. "Look, madame, the skin is clear and appetizing, it would be nice fried as a garnish. Shall we make this fricassee blond or brunette?"

COOK IT WHOLE

I laughed. "What you really mean is a white or a browned."

fricassee. Make it 'blond' and let the bird whole instead of cutting it up first. Then take off the skin, remove the meat from the bones, add it to plenty of gravy, and everybody will have a fair share of both white and dark meat.

Serve this chicken fricassee in a ring of rice cooked in broth made with chicken bouillon cubes. It will make a very substantial dish—enough for a hearty dinner and also an appealing luncheon for the family.

CHICKEN FRICASSEE

Order a (three-to-four-lb.) stewing chicken.

Singe, tweeze out the pin feathers and scrub thoroughly. Rinse and dry. Place in a good-sized kettle with the giblets and add two tsp. salt, one sliced, peeled onion, one-half tsp. thyme or marjoram, and one c. celery leaves. Almost cover with boiling water; boil about two min., then cover closely and simmer until tender, from two to three hours.

Drain from the liquid. Cool, and remove the chicken meat from the bones, flaking it in medium-size pieces. Remove the skin but reserve it.

Next, strain and measure the chicken broth, and for each cup stir in 1½ tsp. flour blended smooth with one tbsp. cold water.

Cook and stir until boiling rapidly. Add the chicken giblets and the meat. Heat and serve poored over a mound of rice cooked in bouillon. Garnish with the chicken skin cut in squares and fried until golden brown. Sprinkle with minced parsley.

To Pressure Cook: Prepare the chicken as directed; place in the pressure cooker with the seasonings and two c. boiling water. Pressure cook 35 to 40 min. at 15 lbs.

CORN FRITTERS

Beat 1 egg light. Add 1 can corn kernels, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ c. milk and 1 c. flour, sifted with 2 tsp. baking powder. Stir in 2 tbsp. melted shortening, any kind. Drop by half tablespoons onto a heavy oiled frying pan or griddle, and fry first on one side then on the other, allowing about 3 min. in all. Serve very hot as a vegetable, or with bacon or syrup as a breakfast dish.

FRUIT COMPOTE

To make an attractive service, good-size shallow sauce dishes are needed. Use a selection of three fruits, fresh or canned but of contrasting colors, such as stewed dried peaches, segments of fresh orange, and a few black cherries, small cooked prunes, or green grapes. Put two peach halves with some juice in a dish. On one side, put three segments of orange, and on the other 3 or 4 black cherries, prunes or seeded green grapes.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

To render chicken fat, remove all particles of flesh and bits of blood from the fat. Let stand one hr. in cold salted water. Drain; put in an open pan and try out very slowly in the oven. Pour the melted fat off as often as it accumulates. Strain and keep in a covered jar in the refrigerator.

Hostess' Favorite Recipe

By MARTHA LEE

MRS. ROBERT P. BAINBRIDGE, Boston socialite of Gloucester st., has given us a recipe for a delicious dessert sauce to be served over sponge cake. She calls it her "Eggnog Sauce" because it resembles a nice thick eggnog. The reason this dessert is such a favorite with Mrs. Bainbridge is that she can make the sauce as early as five hours ahead of the meal, pour it over the cake and put it in the refrigerator. Because it is rather thick, the sauce doesn't soak into the cake on standing. This dessert is especially good with a hearty casserole main dish and a salad.

SPONGE CAKE WITH EGGNOG SAUCE

4 eggs, separated
¼ pint heavy cream
1 cup sugar
Pinch of cream of tartar
2 tbsp. rum
2 tbsp. bouillon
Beat egg whites stiff with cream of tartar; beat cream stiff and add bouillon; beat yolks stiff with sugar and rum; fold all together. Pour this sauce over sponge cake. The cake may be cut in squares. This recipe makes about 4 servings of sauce.

Drapable Dresses of Fine Wool

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

FINE WOOL has become a very important fashion fabric. It is being used not only in suits and coats, but also in important dresses and gowns. Some of the loveliest afternoon dresses, even some of the most notable evening gowns of the season, are made of wool so delicately sheer that it looks like some fabulous new silk. Designers like the way it handles; it drapes with a lovely softness. Women like wool because it keeps them warm as it makes them look beautiful.

Fira Benenson designs a dress and jacket ensemble in two companion pieces of wool jersey. The dress is simple. It has a plain, slightly flared skirt. This is black. The top is black jersey, striped in brown; it has a high, round neck and bracelet length sleeves. The black jersey jacket is wide at the top, narrow at the waistline, extended over the hips with padding. The smoking jacket reversers and cuffs are of the striped fabric. The front shell buttons close the jacket at the waist.

FASHION 37
goes white in fresh, crisp touches which strongly savor of Gibson Girl days when mamma was a lady and white collars and cuffs were the mainstay of her wardrobe of basics. This William Boss navy sheer wool dress will make any figure look good . . . and a good figure look magnificent. The slimly-lifted bodice has a deep V neckline framed by a white pique collar and bow . . . full three-quarter sleeves finished with white pique cuffs, a hand-span midriff achieved by means of hundreds of inverted tucks and a softly-full skirt.—RUTH MUGGLEBEE.

Concerning 'Old Maids'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SEVERAL LETTERS which have reached my desk lately express a fear that the writers will be left "old maids." These girls are in their early twenties and their complaints are, for the most part, of two kinds. Some complain that there is a dearth of "nice" young men; that, as one of them put it, there are no modern boys who "could even come near my idea of a fiancé."

Others merely state the bleak facts that there seems to be a scarcity of any young men at all, and want to know how they can meet some. "Now of course it is a fact that following any major war, the number of eligible young males is sharply reduced in any given place."

COMPLAINTS FROM CITIES

The girls writing me from small towns seem to feel that if they could only get away to a large city their problem of finding a husband would have a better chance of being solved. They will doubtless be surprised to hear that one of the most desperate letters I have received on this subject came from a girl living in New York City. She declares she is "seriously concerned with the problem of winding up an old maid," and says that she and her friends "have come to the conclusion that New York and vicinity are far from an ideal stamping ground, as far as men are concerned."

In the case of the girl living in or close to a large city, there are more opportunities to make social contacts with men than she is taking advantage of. For example, my correspondent from New York tells me firmly that "church socials and YWCAs are not the answer" to her problem, as she has tried. But I know of many churches in the New York area which have very active clubs of young men and women, and there are also YWCAs which make a point of bringing young people together.

MAKE CHECK YOURSELF

My advice to all the girls who feel themselves unable either to find any men friends at all or who are congenial, is to make a careful survey of social opportunities in their communities and see if they have perhaps overlooked some bets.

If after they have done this, the case still seems hopeless, then I advise them to set about developing some interests and hobbies which they can happily pursue, even though in a manless environment. If one must "wind up an old maid," it is far better to do it gracefully and enjoyably than to sit around moaning about it. Oddly enough, too, it often mysteriously happens that the girl who has made herself so busy and happy, even without men friends, that she has become an interesting and stimulating person to be with, suddenly finds doors of opportunity open to her that she thought were closed.

42 Suspense Abounds in Para-Fenway 'T-Men'

By PEGGY DOYLE

If you ever got stuck with a phony buck . . . and who hasn't? . . . the Treasury Department's intense manhunt on counterfeiters, now showing on the Paramount and Fenway screens, should reimburse you immeasurably.

down the origin of a grade of paper that is being used by a counterfeiting gang in making spurious bills. There is also a dope smuggling angle to the case.

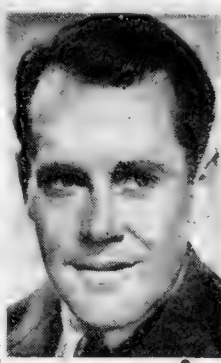

Their investigation takes the pair to Detroit where they wangle their way into the confidence of an outfit that is beating the government out of liquor taxes by using faked stamps. Posing as a couple of "wanted" mugs, their ruse works. O'Keefe gets a line on Wally Ford in Los Angeles, shows Ford how the game should be played to their advantage. Using Ford he moves up to the big boss with whom he would make a deal with the fine plates he is interested in.

Meanwhile Ryder's identity is discovered and he is slain without exposing O'Keefe . . . and the Treasury Department has been kept informed. O'Keefe the while is closing in on the gang with Art Smith, representing the Treasury, ready to spring in on the other end. The final deal, scheduled to take place on the ship, finds O'Keefe in the driver's seat and the gang either killed or captured.

"T-Men" isn't a pretty picture. Frankly, it is not for the little ones of the squeamish, but it is not to be missed by grown-up film-goers who are pushovers for Grade A, realistic suspense.

Husband Puts Himself on Spot

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 (AP)—A spot on the wall grew into a blot on her marriage. Mrs. Ward W. Smith told the judge yesterday an obtaining a divorce.

"My husband repeatedly told me I was a poor housekeeper for not removing the spot," she testified. "Then one day, he decided to get some soap and water and remove it himself. He rubbed at the spot, but instead of disappearing, it became larger."

"So he got some more soap and rubbed some more, but the spot just grew and grew and he got madder and madder. I just stood watching and that seemed to irritate him more. So finally he turned on me and slapped my face."

Bill Robinson Still Stealing Show Honors at RKO Boston

Bill Robinson, 69 years young, saves the RKO Boston bill this week with his championship tap-dancing and his persuasive patter.

The Grand Old Man of Taps is not doing his famous staircase dance these days, which is not to say that the years have slowed him up for he is stepping as spryly as ever and inevitably to ear-shattering applause.

Impeccably tailored as usual in a caramel-colored suit, he sauntered on stage with his unfailing smiling ease and to the nicest music an entertainer ever listened to... a deafening roar made by hand slapped against hand. Even the Boston's sometimes less than courteous bubble-gum set were quieted into alert attention by Robinson's warm and winning personality.

He's talking more this trip, and his slyly comic yarns from out of his impressive past on stage, the wits and the air-planes are received with genuine enthusiasm.

On the same bill is Broadway's gifted Jane Kean, whose latest Manhattan appearance was a "Call Me Mister." She really never looked prettier than in the breezily sequined, floating-skirted gown of cinnamon satin and tulle she wore at yesterday's opening show. It set off her blonde good look handsomely.

Her repertoire, including "Starley Steamer," "The Fat Peckles," "South America, Take It Away" (from "Mister"), and a series of singing impersonations was well received. But Jane, you can't get better than that. Get back the warmth in your voice and blow out that brassiness.

Renald and Rudy, a pair of lean steel-muscles, open the show with a show of strength that billed as poetry in motion, as looks as effortless as a feather, a breeze. Don't try it!

George Painter, who calls for sell a laugh salesman, and Vic and Lexing, who tap their "All in Fun," ought to double check with Webster's unabridged "The Prince of Thieves," a film in color with Jon Hall, Adelle Jagers, Patricia Morrison, Mich. Duane, Alan Mowbray and Hal Warner, tops the film half of the week's entertainment at the RKO Boston. PEGGY LOYLE.

Boxers Ruined by Greed of Pilots, Says Armstrong

By JACK CONWAY

Jack (Spider) Armstrong, veteran Toronto featherweight, was a visitor at this office following a gym workout for his ten-round bout with Jack Weber of Pawtucket which will be staged by the Callahan A. C. at the Garden on Monday night. He was accompanied by his manager, Eddie Brink, who was a great welterweight in his leather tossing youth, and his 19-year-old fistic protege, Johnny Eber of Toronto who is a featherweight.

Armstrong has been fighting for 16 years apart from the time he spent as a physical instructor in the Canadian army during the war.

"I have engaged in 389 bouts," said Armstrong. "Of that number 300 were as a professional, the others as an amateur. I boxed for two years as an amateur, and then turned professional. Sixteen years of trying to avoid punches, while I landed my own wallop.

"When I started boxing, I was a flyweight. I put on weight and now scale 130 pounds.

"I first met Eddie Brink while I was boxing in England back in 1933. Eddie was then performing as a welterweight."

I asked Armstrong, who has earned close to $200,000 during his long ring career, the reasons for his success.

"I can classify it all under three headings," said Jack. "(a)—regularity of eating, (b)—No smoking, (c)—No dissipation.

"When I am training I am up at 7 o'clock in the morning. I walk four or five miles on the road, and do some shadow boxing as I move along. I gave up running on the road when I went under the management of Eddie Brink. I found it used up too much of my vitality.

"I rest when I get back home, and have breakfast at 10 a. m. I usually arrive at the gym around 12 o'clock and start my workout at 1 p. m. I then return home and eat dinner at 4 p. m. At 9 p. m. I may drink a glass of milk.

"As I have got older, I have cut down in the amount of gym work I do. I find that four or five rounds of boxing a day along with my exercises is enough. It is silly to leave one's fight in a gym as so many boxers do."

Hungry Managers Ruin Many Young Boxers

"Why have so few good boxers been developed in recent years, Spider?" I queried.

"Hungry managers," is the answer. "It takes two to five years to develop a boxer. Even with my age, I have boxed better the last three years than I did during the first three years of my professional career even though I had two years of schooling in the amateurs.

"The hungry managers do not recognize this. They move a young boxer from the preliminaries into semi-finals and into main bouts as fast as possible. All they are interested in is a pay day for themselves and they do not care much about the physical future of the unfortunate boxer who happens to be under their direction.

"The result of this get-rich-quick-system is that many a promising boxer is ruined physically before he has mastered the fundamentals of the boxing game. I think the oldtime managers who nursed young boxers along until they had been properly trained and schooled did much more for the ring game than most of the present day pilots."

Armstrong revealed why he came back to the boxing game following his discharge from service.

"I came to Boston with several boxers who were under my direction, and took a peek at some of the mitt wielders in action here," said Jack. "I then met Eddie Brink.

"You can beat most of the present day featherweights," said Brink.

"I agreed with Eddie and returned to the ring. It was a good decision as I have earned many good purses since, and have purchased a fine home in Toronto where I live with my wife and two children, Bruce Robert, 12, and Paul Douglas, 14 months. The boxing game has been good to me, and I have tried to repay the fans by giving them action."

Asked what he thought the outcome of his bout with Jackie Weber would be, Armstrong replied:

"I am in good condition and I think I shall win. When I last fought Weber, he got the decision, but he did not believe he was entitled to it. As we shook hands in the center of the ring before the verdict was rendered, Weber said to me, 'This is one I have lost.'"

"If one is to make good in boxing, he must love the sport."

"A boxer must train hard, but he should also have some relaxation. Once a bout is over a boxer should have some recreation, and eat what he wishes. I occasionally go night clubbing when I am

Dodds to Hold Public's Eye In K. C. Mile

Speculated that Gil Dodds, starting on the last legs toward voluntary retirement from track competition, will be the big magnet in the Knights of Columbus games tomorrow night at the Boston Garden where he'll be taking his place in a field of six starters.

Despite the huge and talented field of competitors listed for every event, which includes running the Bishop Cheverus 1000-yard in two heats for the first time, the winner being determined by the clock, the mile is again the feature to the fans. And they talk nothing but the possibility of Gil Dodds setting a new record for the distance, even though there are national champions competing in other events.

Harrison Dilard of Baldwin-Wallace, holder of the national indoor and outdoor hurdles titles, will compete over the 45-yard timbers George Guide, national AAU 600-yard (list) from Vilanova, and Eddie Conwell of Jersey City, the national AAU indoor sprint champ, will go after the 50-yard trophy. This trio is also entered in the Philadelphia Inquirer games tonight and they'll be attempting an iron man stunt by running here tomorrow.

Dodds will be making his first appearance this season, and from all reports out of Boston College, where he is training under the veteran coach, Jack Ryder, he is expected to break the K of C record.

the race shapes up, it will be Dodds against the field.

The Flying Parson, who has won 25 straight races, will have Bill Hulke, Tom Quinn, Larry Ellis, Travers O. Perkins and Bill Mack as rivals.

Both Hulke and Quinn are well known to local fans for they have seen them chase home their favorite many times.

Mack has many backers in Michigan where he has done 4:12 and Ellis is tabbed by the followers of New York University as not far from championship caliber right now.

Perkins is labeled as the dark-horse of the field on the strength of his fine showing in capturing the 800-meter junior title in 1:51.8 last summer and consistently checking in at 3:33 for the 1500-meter. This proves Perkins, who will represent the Illinois A. C. made famous by Joey Ray after the first World War, is the one to watch. He has the speed and the stamina.

The rest of the card is star-studded and should prove interesting, despite the fans' fascination for the mile.

FAIL TO SETTLE OLYMPIC DISPUTE

ABOARD THE QUEEN MARY EN ROUTE TO ENGLAND (By telephone to London, Jan. 23 (AP))—Hopes of settling the U. S. Olympic hockey controversy appear no brighter after a conference of the two central figures in the dispute—Avery Brundage and Walter Brown.

Brundage, president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, and Brown, vice president of the Amateur Hockey Assn., talked the matter over aboard ship yesterday.

Brundage said afterwards the two-hour session was "amicable" but added he thought a solution was impossible.

"Unfortunately this has gotten beyond a mere hockey controversy," Brundage stated after the conference. "It is a challenge against the organization of the Olympic games themselves."

Brown said he told Brundage he (Brundage) had "some feel-out on his hockey team who could not take the Olympic oath, but as we see it anyway."

NHL Bonus System Has All Players Hustling

By BILL GRIMES

Having played more than 60 per cent of its 180 game schedule, the National Hockey League is squaring away for the stretch drive. The NHL acted wisely by adopting the bonus system, which awards $10,000 to each player of the team that finishes on top $500 to the members of the second place club, $300 to the winners of third place, and $150 to the fourth and fifth place teams in the Stanley Cup series.

The bonus system is an extra incentive for the players. It is a long term has been in effect since the 1920s. When the league was divided into two divisions, some players were "lucky" to get a bonus. It was a great incentive for them to play hard. They could earn a bonus in the first round of the Stanley Cup play-offs. When the league was grouped into one division, the practice was discontinued.

The players' prize for the regular season was increased to $11,250. And that's a prize worth the best efforts of even an every player in the league. Old players must now realize how the game has grown. It wasn't so many years ago that winners of the Stanley Cup didn't receive $10,000 shares. Now, the league will split $11,250 to each player of the club which finishes on top. Les Canham played in the game to win the world's championship in the spring of 1931 and the individual "take" was less than $1,200. On another occasion, when the rate of exchange favored American currency, a Canadian club was not only paid off in the dollar but in Canadian money.

The bonus system may be a continuation of changes in the division of Stanley Cup receipts. Unlike baseball, where the players' shares from Stanley Cup series have never been defined, the prize money of the club owners depends on the luck of some. Hockey players have organized, to a certain extent. They have no intention of trying to "take over." All they want is a square share. When they certainly received via the bonus system. With the $10,000 award, which the winners of the Hart, Calder, Lady Byng, Vezina and Prince of Wales trophies receive, the $10,000 and $500 which go to players selected for the first and second All-Star teams, plus the $500, $300 and $150 additions to each member of the clubs finishing second,

602 Schoolboys Open Indoor Track Season

By BOB WALDO

Highlighting schoolboys' most active week-end of the current winter campaign will be the 21st annual Northeastern Interscholastic track meet at the Garden tomorrow afternoon. A new high of 602 individuals from 45 schools will vie for the many awards, plus the team trophy.

In view of the large fields more heats than ever are scheduled. Preliminary entries list 78 in the dash, 55 in the hurdles, 38 in the 300, 74 in the 600, and 73 in the 1000.

Only one entry from each school be permitted in the 300, a fact that may cause considerable shuffling in English and Malden plans. English will have to choose between Ken Shawles and Gerry Shulman, while either Bill Adams or Dick Howard must sit out the event for Malden.

Boston English, defending champion, is accorded a slight edge to repeat last year's win, but is expected to receive hot competition from Malden, Medford and Newton. Boston Tech, with the game's only returning champion, Clyde Crawford, can't be counted out.

The new three feet, three-inch hurdles will be in use for the first time in a major meet, and it will be interesting to compare the times with those of the higher obstacles.

Medford's football leader, Tom Kelley, Malden's Carl Vaccaro, Rindge Tech's Bill Gilber, and Weymouth's Bob Parsons are being touted as the ones to watch in the new barrier scramble.

Four Worcester teams will be back in competition after a wartime absence of five years. Little is known of these Western Mass. entries, but they usually have been prominent as shot putters and hurdlers.

Many will be shooting for Carl Joyce's mark of 2:19.1 for the 1000-yard run set last year. Outstanding among these are John Convey, Weymouth; Paul Hurd, Newton; Bob Ross, Lynn English, and Al Collins, Rindge Tech.

A 13-race relay program will close out the afternoon's meet. It wasn't until the final relay last year that the meet was decided. On a disqualification, English was moved up to first place, thus giving them five points instead of the second place three, to give them a half point advantage over Malden for the win.

This year finds the two matched again, and in the final battle passing event, so it could well be the feature of the afternoon.

Expected to push Clyde Crawford all the way in the dash affair is Al Bartolucci of Somerville. Bartolucci was a major meet winner as a sophomore, and since hasn't shown to much advantage. However, he is reported to be in fine condition, and promises one of his best performances.

This will serve as a barometer for the coming State meet two weeks from tomorrow.

Yale's Lavelli 2d in Scoring

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Norman Hankins, of Lawrence (Mich.) Tech, has taken over the individual scoring leadership among major collegiate basketball teams with an average of 23.8 points for 15 games.

Figures disclosed today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show Hankins has rimmed 149 field goals and 59 free throws for 357 points through games of Jan. 17. He tops Tony Lavelli, of Yale, by a narrow margin. Lavelli has an average of 23.2 with 113 double-doubles and 75 ebbity tosses for 301 points in 13 games.

George Kok, of Arkansas, co-leader in the Southwest Conference, is third with an average of 20.6 for 13 games, and Frank Kudelka, of St. Mary's (Cal.) fourth with 20.1 for nine games.

22 Schoolboy Ice Games for Arena This Week-End

No fewer than six schoolboy hockey leagues will see action in this overcrowded week-end program. The Arena will be the scene of all the ice antics with 22 contests scheduled before the curtain drops Sunday night.

The week's rounds can go a long way in settling the league issues in two of the races. Returning to the rink tonight after only a one night rest will be the Bay State League which is locked in a tie for top honors between Walpole and Watertown. The Esmaas, loop is sporting the same situation with Medford and Belmont.

Walpole will be faced with the task of knocking off Waltham, the conquerors of Watertown, if it hopes to remain on the top rung. However, the Polers will have the ailing San Moore and disciplined Al Pare back on its first attacking wave which should help them get back in winning form. Framingham's recent win over Walpole was attributed to the loss of this duo.

In the other crucial clash, Watertown will have to defeat runner-up Needham if it hopes to remain at least in tie for the roof. Needham has come up with two improved skaters in Ed Brown and Allie Keefe. Both have been raising havoc with the league of late.

The Medford-Belmont fray of the Eastern Mass. circuit looms as tomorrow evenings outstanding affair. While the Belmont net-rinder, Paul Kelley, is shooting for his fourth shutout of the season, teammates Jack Butt, Ronnie Butt (cousins), and Skip Viglorio will be out to boost their scoring marks. In a recent contest Ronnie Butt did the hat trick one better when he counted four times in one game. WALDO.

Repeat Derby Performance for N. Y. Girl

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

Andra McLaughlin, New York figure skating champion who made such a spectacular hit with Silver Skates Derby fans last season, says that she has something brand new in her skating repertoire for the fans when she returns a week from Sunday, for the 1948 Derby.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE—Andra McLaughlin, brilliant 14-year-old New York figure skating champion, will demonstrate her "Interpretation of a Goldfish" in a specialty Silver Skates Derby presentation at Boston Garden Feb. 1. She was one of the stars of last year's classic.

"I call my new dance 'An Interpretation of a Gold Fish,'" says the talented youngster. "Last year, I did my 'Indian War Dance' number. My new skating act is novel. I have been practicing it for a long time and I am sure that it will make a great hit."

Andra certainly does not restrict her activities to figure skating. "She started ballet dancing, tap dancing and figure skating all before she was eight years old," said Mrs. McLaughlin following Andra's triumph in the New York Silver Skates.

Andra's specialty now is figure skating, but she loves to get the long racing blades laced tight around her ankles. She has already won seven major speed skating titles, including the New York Intermediate Silver Skates championship in which she almost broke the old record.

The Silver Skates Derby entry committee hasn't computed the number of entries for this year's classic but Ben Levas, Derby director, claims that the old record of 625 entries has been surpassed.

There will be a FREE speed skating session for Silver Skates Derby speedsters at the Arena Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5. The figure skaters will practice from 1:30 to 2:45.

Recent Derby entries: Dorothy Riley, 10, Derby; Hyde Park, Henry Paradis, 28, 10th St.; Bolderford, Mr. Harry Marx, 13, 10th St.; Bedford, Gerard Collins, 10, Pleasant Way, South Boston; William Bennett, 29, Mass. ave., Roxbury; Peter Bennett, 5, Thomas st., Belmont; Jean Carter, 11, Sydney st., Somerville; Phyllis Perkins, 12, Commonwealth ave., Boston; Geraldine Platt, 14, Laurel st., Cambridge; Joseph Currier, 11, Marlborough st., Boston; John T. Leahy to Stay at Notre Dame

Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, president of Notre Dame, told the local Notre Dame Club last night that Frank Leahy has no intention of resigning as the Fighting Irish coach in answer to many queries as to the possibility of Leahy accepting the Detroit offer to coach the Lions of the National Football League.

Fr. Cavanaugh said: As far as I know, Frank Leahy has no intention of leaving Notre Dame, however, Notre Dame always wishes good luck to anyone who leaves to better himself.

He went on to say that much more importance should be placed on the coaching staff of a college and that there was too much emphasis placed on material.

Admitting that Michigan was a "tremendous team," he went on to say that Notre Dame would be eager to play the Wolverines. "That is the only way to decide which is the better team, Michigan is the papers champ, but Notre Dame is ready to take on Michigan anytime."

'Outlaws' Would Make Dyer Happy

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 23 (AP)—Speaking as a baseball manager, Eddie Dyer would like to see three former Cardinals who jumped to the Mexican League back in St. Louis uniform.

Dyer said yesterday the three players, pitchers Max Lanier and Fred Martin and infielder Lou Klein, who went to Mexico in 1946 would be welcomed back and given every opportunity to make the club.

The Cardinal manager was asked his opinion after an announcement Wednesday that Commr. A. B. Chandler and organized baseball are ready to make peace with the Mexican League.

Many Hazards Ahead for HC In Its Defense of NCAA Title

By FRED HOEY.

Nobody realizes the hazards in front of the Holy Cross basketball team in its quest to defend its NCAA title more than the team's coach, Alvin "Doggie" Julian.

By shellacking Rhode Island State, 76-49, in most approved and convincing fashion, the Crusaders removed a bothersome and a dangerous New England foe. Holy Cross should breeze through for the New England title but the boys from Worcester are going to face some tough opposition from the outside.

A glance at the Purple schedule of remaining games reveals some terrific road games as well as tough tilts at Boston Garden. Temple, which tipped over the powerful Kentucky five, will appear here Feb. 10 to tackle Holy Cross.

Then, too, there are Boston College, Boston University, Dartmouth, Loyola of Chicago, Colgate and Brown.

The Crusaders showed approximately 35,000 fans that they had power, speed and resourcefulness as they brushed off R. I. S. with surprising ease. The Rams showed plenty of speed and had plenty of good openings, but Frank Koucky's men appeared terribly jittery.

From our observation post, the key man of the Holy Cross attack was Joe Mullaney. He set up plays with consummate ease. Bob Cousy and George Kaftan enter the records as high scorers, but the players really made it possible was Mullaney.

Holy Cross may be heading for trouble tomorrow night when they tackle Yale and the great Tony Lavelli. The Elis may not be the greatest outfit in the world, but they certainly do perform handsomely before home patronage.

The Crusaders' next appearance at the Garden will find them opposed to Georgetown Feb. 3. This is another battle that should prove a thorough test for Coach Julian's men.

Smith Warns Rock Will Fight

Lou Smith, general manager of Rockingham Park says his track will fight what he terms an attempt on the part of Suffolk Downs and Narragansett Park to secure a monopoly on the choice racing dates of the 1948 season.

Smith declared these two tracks have attempted to use up all dates between April 19 and Sept. 18, and he was placed in a position to decide whether to fight the condition or occupy a position as a minor league track.

"I shall fight this attempt on the part of Suffolk Downs and Narragansett to monopolize the 1948 racing dates," declared Smith.

"Under present conditions, we can conduct a 15-day meeting from Aug. 16 through Sept. 6, and we can stage a second meeting of longer duration later in the fall."

"I shall place our plans before the New Hampshire Racing Commission. I have the backing of my stockholders, and we have more than $500,000 in our treasury to conduct a racing war."

"I think there is too much racing. I was for a plan that would have reduced the number of racing dates in New England and given a share of the dates to Lincoln Downs. Whether we like Lincoln Downs or not, the track is here and entitled to some consideration."

"Most of the betting money comes from Massachusetts and I felt Suffolk Downs, in the heart of the metropolitan area, was entitled to more dates than other tracks. If the tracks sanction these conflicts by giving too much racing to the public, the merchants and other business people will oppose the sport. That will be the end of organized racing in New England."

Smith plans to go to Florida the latter part of this month and address the members of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Ass'n at their annual dinner in Miami. He will reveal to them his plans for the 1948 season.

"I know that I can get enough horses to offer attractive cards," continued Smith.

JACK CONWAY.

Slalom Racing Requires Skill, Speed, Quick Thinking

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

With the third annual Walter Foley Memorial Slalom races all set to be held on Locke's Slope, Amesbury, tomorrow and Sunday, numerous folks, who plan to attend the meet as spectators, have asked us the meaning of that tongue-twisting word, "slalom."

A slalom race, therefore, is a contest run between flags placed in a staggered or zig-zag course, usually from one-quarter to one-half mile in length.

A bit of research into the history of skiing revealed that an Austrian, Mathias Zarsky, first introduced this phase of the sport on the steep sides of the Alps, way back in the late 1890's.

Slalom racing calls for both skill and speed, as well as quick thinking. An average course consists of around 25 or 30 "gates."

—a gate being two flags of the same color, set at various angles, making them known as open, closed, or inverted gates. A "flush" is a series of two or more gates in a row, through which the racer must twist and turn like a flying pretzel.

Slaloms are most interesting and exciting to watch, particularly on a slope like Locke's Hill, where the entire course will be within full view of the spectators. So, come down and witness one of the fastest sports in the world.

To all entrants in the Foley races, we remind them of the following rules: if both FEET fail to go through a gate, the runner will be disqualified, unless he or she climbs back and goes through the gate. . . . If only ONE foot goes between the flags, the runner will be given a SINGLE penalty.

Starting times of the races: The women's event will commence at 11 a. m., tomorrow, and entries will be accepted at the slope until 10 o'clock. . . . The men's slalom will begin promptly at 10 a. m., Sunday. The entries for this race closed yesterday.

Mike Jacobs to Remain In Advisory Capacity

QUITS SOCCER POST

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP) Jack Bray, former halfback on the England national soccer team, has resigned as manager of the Watford club of the English Football League because he says the game is being ruined by commercialism.

"Uncle Mike," now 67 and not in the best of health, grinned over the furore caused by his announcement of retirement yesterday, when he said that "win, lose or draw" he will "retire from boxing forever" after a return match this spring between the champ and Jersey Joe Walcott.

"I don't back down on a single thing I said," Jacobs declared today after a deluge of long distance telephone calls and messages had died down.

"When Louis bows out of boxing, I am through with active promoting."

"My physician called and told me it wouldn't be advisable to completely retire at this time. On advice from my doctor I will probably still hang on to my interests in the 20th Century Sporting Club in an advisory capacity. The doctor thinks I'd better keep kind of active and keep a hand in things."
